N a window card advertising a certain make of fountain pen I saw this the other day: "Get a blank Fountain Pen. Every Pen is Insured. If Yours Should Be Run Over and Broken, We'll Give You a New One."

Trine! All you have to do to be sure of getting a good bargain is to put one of Blank's pens in an upper vest pocket, wait for a nice, heavy wagon to come along, lie down and get run over. Then you'll get a new pen free.

This sounds silly, but it's true. That sign is a real one. It is but one instance of what is commonly looked upon as "advertising." If I had a wee fraction of the money that is spent in this glorious, hustling country of ours on this kind of "advertising," I'd be building skyscrapers as a pastime and rolling duckpins with globules of radium instead of the conventional wooden balls.

I Let's swing the pendulum the other way for a minute. In the "For Sale" column in the CLASSIFIED pages of an Eastern newspaper I saw recently a little five-line advertisement. This is what it said: "Mantel mirrors, with heavy French plate glass. beveled; beautiful design of burnished and old gold frame; 49 inches wide, 43 high; good value at $25; sale price $17.50. Frizzell's Art Rooms, Park avenue, at Saratoga."

No free offer of a new mirror if the one you buy should happen to wander out and get run over. No foolishness. No bait. Just plain, honest statement of what you get for your money and where you can ge it.

Advertising isn't buncombe. It isn't a big hurrah. It isn't magic. It isn't horseplay. It IS Common Sense. And if you write a common-sense ad, and put it in the Classified Columns of The Times, you'll profit. TRY IT.
